Mr. Samudzi:

I am contacting you on behalf of Ben Meers. I am his brother-in-law and an attorney, so if you or, more importantly, Amber McIntosh is represented by counsel, please direct this correspondence to them.

The purpose of this message is to advise you that your actions are considered harassment. You are instructed to cease-and-desist contacting Mr. Meers and DSPolitical and discontinue disparaging Mr. Meers or DSPolitical.

Your allegations and claims have no relationship to Mr. Meers' employment and DSPolitical's internal inquiry has deemed this a private matter. Bombarding Mr. Meers and DSPolitical representatives with multiple, unsolicited, unanswered, and duplicative email messages proves that your intent is to disrupt and interfere with Mr. Meers' employment, damage his reputation, and destroy industry opportunities.

There is nothing to gain by turning this into a public spectacle. Continuing down this road will likely be more harmful to you by creating embarrassment for your family. You are also subjecting yourself to actions by Mr. Meers and/or DSPolitical for defamation, wrongful interference, and emotional distress directly caused by your harassment, along with any other criminal actions, claims, damages, and remedies available.

Given your contentions and without regard to the merits of your allegations, the destruction of evidence by anyone would be illegal. Further, your promise to file unsubstantiated and reckless criminal complaints to force Mr. Meers' hand demonstrates that you are the one tampering or interfering with a potential witness. Coercion tied to the threat of pursuing a criminal inquiry could not be guided by the advice of competent counsel, as this would violate their ethical responsibilities and subject them to professional discipline. I encourage you to seek legal guidance and have them contact me.

Eric R. Atamian, Esq.

Andrew,

Please find forwarded correspondence from Mr. Meers's family attorney that I previously mentioned, which prompted my message highlighting the contradiction regarding DS Political's involvement. He does not appear to be proper independent counsel (brother-in-law presents conflict of interest), and responding at the final day with only empty legal threats, while admitting there is evidence, suggests that he himself is aware that his case is indefensible.

This communication also confirms in writing coordination between your client and Mr. Meers, directly contradicting your May 23 statement. Of particular note:

- Explicit reference to "DSPolitical's internal inquiry"
- Coordination of legal strategy between supposedly separate parties
- He does not refute a single claim we have made (including sexual coercion or potential commercial distribution), nor does he deny possession of the content - merely that he wants this to remain private
- Relies on generic threats and attempts to characterize lawful reporting and requests for resolution as "harassment."
- Admission that evidence destruction would be illegal (suggesting awareness of evidence to destroy)

This makes the forensic audit even more critical - not only to verify your client's involvement, but to determine what was discovered and potentially compromised during this undisclosed "internal inquiry."

As stated in my prior message today, I await your immediate response addressing these contradictions.

Mr. Atamian

I acknowledge receipt of your message. However, I note several concerning issues with your purported representation:

Your identification as Mr. Meers' brother-in-law creates obvious conflicts of interest that call into question the propriety of your involvement in this matter. Additionally, your response contradicts DS Political's corporate counsel's explicit statement that these are "purely private personal matters" not involving DS Political - yet you reference "DSPolitical's internal inquiry" and threaten joint legal action by both parties. Lastly, sending this note 2 hours before the deadline after a full week to comply suggests your client did not expect his victim to have the resolve to hold him accountable, and is motivated only by material threat of criminal prosecution. Given your comments about evidence destruction and complete lack of refutation of any actual claims - this indicates your client is aware that there is substantive evidence supporting our claims and that he has no viable defense other than intimidating Ms. McIntosh with baseless, unethical and even illegal claims into dropping the matter.

Regardless of representation questions, my deadline for voluntary compliance has passed without the requested action (certified deletion of unlawfully possessed intimate images).

As previously stated, I will now proceed with criminal referrals starting tomorrow to the appropriate prosecutors who have already reviewed the evidence. Any future communications should be directed through proper criminal defense counsel once charges are filed.
