Ms. Benner,

I received your correspondence regarding Petitioner's First Interrogatories and Requests for Production.

Recent developments in the Middle East and their impact on energy markets, including effects on my clients in Southern Africa, have required my immediate attention and contributed to the delay. I am in the process of preparing my responses and will serve them on or before April 6, 2026.

I am making a good faith effort to ensure that my responses are complete and accurate given the scope of the requests. I am also preparing my own interrogatories and requests for production.

Separately, I am available to coordinate scheduling of mediation; however, I do not consent to proceeding with the currently proposed mediator. I am willing to confer on selecting a mutually acceptable neutral.

Regards,
Shingai

Ms. Benner,

I want to provide context for the enclosed discovery requests, specifically regarding the intimate content at the center of this case.

The volume of content your client shared with Ben Meers was created during a period of documented disordered behavior — a CPT-II evaluation by Dr. Roger Freed in July 2023 showing 99th percentile impulsivity, a subsequent performance improvement plan and termination from employment, voluntary unemployment without benefits, medication non-compliance, and ultimately an ER psychiatric visit in January 2025. It includes him pressuring her to have a recorded intimate encounter mere 8 weeks after giving birth to our daughter in 2021, on a trip she claimed to my family and me was a "solo rest weekend". The content does not represent a consensual romantic relationship or empowered self-expression. It represents escalating exploitation by a public figure who, during this same period, was the subject of publicly corroborated allegations in Kansas City media (2022-2023) involving surveillance of women and abuse of power that led to his resignation.

The October 2024 casting couch video — a transcript of which was included in my interrogatory responses—illustrates the escalation. The format is a recognized commercial pornography template. Your client appears wearing her wedding ring and references her husband's lack of awareness as scripted content. This was recorded when your client was at her most psychologically vulnerable: three months before her ER psychiatric admission and concurrent with her entry into a twelve-step SLAA program. The visual setup closely resembles the format used in cases that resulted in federal digital trafficking prosecutions, such as Girls Do Porn.

Critically, your client did not control the content library. She shared what she had with Mr. Meers, but he maintained his own recordings from a second camera that were never shared with her. His attorney has confirmed in writing that Mr. Meers possesses the content and will not delete it. Your client's written deletion request was, by her own admission, subsequently countermanded.

Mr. Meers has been pushing to post this content publicly on social media platforms. The people most impacted by any public exposure are not the adults involved — they are the children. There are now numerous documented cases nationally of mothers with OnlyFans accounts being discovered by someone in the school community, resulting in organized campaigns by other parents that led to the children being expelled, bullied, or forced to relocate. In every documented case, the social consequences fell on the children, not the creator.

Your client's children are currently enrolled at Columbia Independent School. The content existed on a device the children had access to. It is held by a man who has refused to delete it and who has been escalating toward public distribution. The risk to these children is not hypothetical.

I remain willing to resolve this matter without a hearing.

Hi Shingai,

I am uploading your discovery responses and noticed that we are missing the documents you reference in your answer to request #5 in the Request for Production of Documents. Please share those ASAP.

Thanks,
Claire

Supplemental Disclosure: Case No. 25BA-FC01732

Attached is the November 27–28, 2024, communication record between the parties.

Please note the Petitioner's explicit admissions regarding the voluntary sharing of the digital files (22:56:01), which contradicts any subsequent allegations of "harassment" or "unauthorized surveillance."

Furthermore, the record documents the Petitioner's contemporary acknowledgment of sexual grooming and repeated consent violations committed by Mr. Meers (23:18:23). The Petitioner explicitly confirms that Mr. Meers had "no regard for [her] stated boundaries" (23:23:48) and acknowledges him as a "predator" (00:12:47).

This record is being provided to ensure that the Petitioner's upcoming discovery responses and deposition testimony are consistent with the established forensic facts.
